CROSS-DOMAIN INTELLIGENCE

Cross-Domain Diagnostic & Coherence

Analysis of systemic alignment across the complete graduate employability lifecycle.

Primary Pathway Analysis

Employer Demand ! Curriculum Alignment ! Practice Learning ! Capability Signalling ! Employment Outcomes

Systemic Coherence Findings

Strong structural coherence (88%) between Employer Demand (D01) and Industry-Aligned Curriculum (D03), driven by active advisory councils.

Slight transmission friction (74%) between Curriculum (D03) and Experiential Learning (D04) due to uneven WIL placement capacity in non-technical faculties.

High conversion efficiency (86%) from Capability Signalling (D08) into Graduate Employment Outcomes (D10).

Diagnostic Breaking Points & Friction Levers

Humanities disciplines exhibit lower employer co-design velocity, creating a temporary alignment lag in non-STEM sectors.

Student digital portfolio uptake requires mandatory integration into capstone assessment rubrics to ensure universal graduate signalling.

METHODOLOGY & GOVERNANCE

Methodology, Calibration & Limitations

Technical notes on the ECRI v6.0 mathematical engine, scoring isolation, and institutional governance principles.

Methodology Framework

ECRI evaluates graduate employability across 11 canonical dimensions and 132 standardized metrics. Scoring combines Maturity Anchors (M0–M5), Implementation Depth (I0–I5), and Outcome Quality (O0–O5).

Transformation Distance vs Capability

Required maturity is context-derived based on institutional mandate, student population, and disciplinary exposure. Transformation distance is a gap analysis tool and never reduces raw capability scores.

Evidence Standard (E0–E4)

Maturity claims at Level 3 and above require multi-source artifact corroboration (E3/E4). Uncorroborated claims are capped to prevent gaming.

Living Benchmark & Snapshot Cycle

Institutions maintain living continuous assessment records. Formal score snapshots are locked during certified annual review cycles.

END OF ILLUSTRATIVE SAMPLE

This report demonstrates the structure, analytical depth and presentation of an ECRI institutional assessment.

The institution, scores, evidence and findings shown are synthetic and illustrative.

A complete institutional report is generated from the institution's own assessment responses, evidence record, AI-assisted evidence analysis and verified score run.

Because standard ECRI does not require an assessor, do not imply mandatory human assessor approval.
